tain psychological considerations based upon their conception of his character and his attitude toward the nomination. To be more explicit, these "practical politicians." who know only one rule, which is to make up their minds that they want a thing and then go after it by every means available, think that Mr. Hughes has presented a vulnerable point of attack in his attitude of aloofness toward the nomination while holding his place on the bench.

Trying to Eliminate Him.

Furthermore, they claim that his high conceptions of his position render him an easy wark for the properties of the conceptions of his position render.

Hitchcock.

"His views on Americanism, prepardeness and other important public questions are sound and were frequently stated by him in public addresses before he became a member of the United States Supreme Court. There is no questions where he stands on any of these questions. While I have had no communication with Justice Hughes for several months, I believe there is no question that if he is nominated he will accept."

"We have been in communication with every state, and we think he will lead all candidates on the first ballot in the convention." Mr. Hitchcock continued. "We think he will receive fifty of New York's eighty-seven votes, but we do not care to make any other claims at present."

nomination.

They claim, and it is here asserted only as their claim, that Mr. Hitchcock's disavowal of authority to speak for Mr. Hughes and his declaration that he is not a candidate, but is being urged by popular acclaim to accept a nomination, only will serve to increase the uncertainty of the delegates. It is the constant aim and effort of the allies to foster that uncertainty. "You don't know whether he will accept it or not," they whisper to the uninstructed delegates, and "you don't know where he they whisper to the uninstructed determines, and "you don't know where he stands" and "you are putting your money on a card face down and ours are face up on the table," and all that sort nomination, without authority from Mr.

It is generally accepted that Mr.

Hughes. That being so, Mr. Hitchcock's

And it is quite an unusual role, it may be remarked, in passing, for Mr. Hitchcock, when we remember his efforts as a practical political manager in the past. The old guard managers jeered his statement that he is acting in behalf of the people at large, and asked the source of his authority. All this I am telling not from disparagement of Mr. Hitchcock by any means, but to give you an insight into the way allies are conducting their campaign to give you an insight into the way allies are conducting their campaign to frighten Mr. Hughes into a premature inhibition of use of his name. President Wilson today issued a proclamation specially urging the ob ervance of Flay day, June 14, by the holding of patriotic exercises. It follows BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, A PROCLA-MATION. My Fellow Countrymen: Many circumstances have recently conspired to turn our thoughts to a critical examination of the conditions of our nations life, of the influences which have seemed to threaten to divide us in interest and sympathy, of forces within and forces without that seemed likely to draw us away from the happy traditions of united purpose and action of which we have been so proud. It has, therefore, seemed to me fitting that I should call your attention to the approach of the anniversary of the day upon which the flag of the United States was adopted by the Congress as the emblem of the Union, and to suggest to you that it should this year and in the years to come be given special significance as a day of renewal and reminder, a day upon which we should direct our minds with a special desire to renewal to thoughts of the ideal and principles of which we have sought to make our great government the embodiment.

Let us on that day rededicate ourselves to the nation, "one and inseparable," from which every thought that is not worthy of our fathers' first vows of independence, liberty and right shall be excluded and in which we shall stand with united hearts, for an America which no man can corrupt, no influence draw away from its ideals, no force divide against itself—a nation signally distinguished among all the nations of mankind for its clear, individual conception alike of its duties and its privileges, its obligations and its rights.
